4 DISTRICT OF NEVADA

5 UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

6 Plaintiff,

7 vs.

8 CHARLES PARKIN,

9 Defendant.

Case No. 2:15-cr-00212-JCM-NJK

REPORT AND RECOMMENDATION

10 This matter is before the Court on the question of Defendant Charles Parkin's competency 11 to stand trial. On January 22, 2020, the United States filed its expert's report regarding 12 Defendant's competency. Docket No. 90. On January 24, 2020, Defendant filed his expert's 13 report regarding his competency. Docket No. 94. On January 30, 2020, the Court held a 14 competency hearing, at which both experts testified. Docket No. 96. At the end of the hearing, 15 the Court allowed the parties to file simultaneous briefing as to their respective positions on the 16 issue of competency. Id. On March 6, 2020, both parties filed their briefs regarding Defendant's 17 competency. Docket Nos. 100, 101.

18 I. BACKGROUND

19 On July 21, 2015, a federal grand jury sitting in Las Vegas, Nevada issued an indictment 20 charging Defendant with theft of government funds, in violation of 18 U.S.C. § 641 and Social 21 Security fraud, in violation of 42 U.S.C. § 408(a)(4). Docket No. 1. On July 31, 2015, Defendant 22 appeared in court for his continued initial appearance and arraignment and plea. Docket No. 6.
23

1 The Court appointed counsel to represent Defendant and ordered him released pending trial on a 2 personal recognizance bond with conditions. Id.

3 On January 17, 2019, Defendant filed a motion for competency hearing. Docket No. 60.
4 In support of his motion, Defendant filed a letter from Dr. Norman Roitman, who examined 5 Defendant at his attorney's request. Docket No. 61. On January 22, 2019, the Court granted 6 Defendant's motion and set a competency hearing for January 28, 2019. Docket No. 62. The 7 parties requested numerous continuances of the competency hearing, all of which were granted.
8 Docket Nos. 63, 64, 69, 70, 73, 74, 79, 80, 83, 84, 85, 86. On January 30, 2020, the parties and 9 their experts appeared before the Court for the competency hearing. Docket No. 96.

10 II. ANALYSIS

11 The Supreme Court of the United States has "repeatedly and consistently recognized that 12 'the criminal trial of an incompetent defendant violates due process.'" Cooper v. Oklahoma, 517 13 U.S. 348, 354 (1996) (quoting Medina v. California, 505 U.S. 437, 453 (1992)). "Competence to 14 stand trial is rudimentary, for upon it depends the main part of those rights deemed essential to a 15 fair trial, including the right to effective assistance of counsel, the rights to summon, to confront, 16 and to cross-examine witnesses, and the right to testify on one's own behalf or to remain silent
17 without penalty for doing so." Cooper, 517 U.S. at 354 (internal citation omitted). "[A] person 18 whose mental condition is such that he lacks the capacity to understand the nature and object of 19 the proceedings against him, to consult with counsel, and to assist in preparing his defense may 20 not be subjected to trial." Droepe v. Missouri, 420 U.S. 162. 171 (1975).

21 The treatment of offenders suffering from a mental disease or defect has been codified in 22 the Federal Criminal Code. 18 U.S.C. §§ 4241-48. If a question is raised concerning whether a 23 defendant is competent to stand trial, the Court first determines whether that defendant suffers

1 from a mental disease or defect rendering him mentally incompetent to the extent that he is unable 2 to understand the nature and consequences of the proceedings against him or to assist properly in 3 his defense. 18 U.S.C. §§ 4241(a) and (d). When the Court has reasonable cause to believe a 4 defendant is suffering from a mental disease or defect rendering him unable to understand the 5 nature and consequences of the proceedings against him or assist properly in his defense, the Court
 6 shall conduct a hearing to determine whether that defendant is competent to stand trial. 18 U.S.C.
 7 §4241(a).

8       A defendant is deemed competent to stand trial if he “has sufficient present ability to 9 consult with his lawyer with a reasonable degree of rational understanding and ... has a rational as 10 well as factual understanding of the proceedings against him.” Dusky v. United States, 362 U.S.
 11 402, 402 (1960) (per curiam) (internal quotation marks omitted). See also United States v.
 12 Gastelum-Almeida, 298 F.3d 1167, 1171 (9th Cir. 2002). “Whether a defendant is capable of 13 understanding the proceedings and assisting counsel is dependent upon evidence of the defendant's 14 irrational behavior, his demeanor in court, and any prior medical opinions on his competence.” 15 Miles v. Stainer, 108 F.3d 1109, 1112 (9th Cir. 1997).

16       The United States has the burden of demonstrating by a preponderance of the evidence that 17 the defendant is competent to stand trial. United States v. Frank, 956 F.2d 872, 875 (9th Cir.
 18 1991). The test that must be applied in determining competency to stand trial is set forth in Dusky:

19       [I]t is not enough for the district judge to find that “the defendant 20 [is] oriented to time and place and [has] some recollection of 21 events,” but that the “test must be whether he has sufficient present 22 ability to consult with his lawyer with a reasonable degree of rational 23 understanding – and whether he has a rational as well as factual understanding of the proceedings against him.

Dusky, 362 U.S. 402-03.

1 The parties agree that the only factor of the Dusky test at issue is whether Defendant is 2 competent to assist counsel. Docket No. 99 at 28-29, 50. While a finding of incompetency is 3 predicated on the existence of a mental disease or defect, the standard for evaluating a defendant's 4 competency to stand trial is not a medical inquiry; rather, it is a legal determination. United States
5 v. Makris, 535 F.2d 899, 908 (5th Cir. 1976). In determining competency, the Court may rely on 6 a number of factors, including medical opinions and the Court's own observation of the defendant.
7 See Torres v. Prunty, 223 F.3d 1103, 1109 (9th Cir. 2000).

8       A. Dr. Sunshine Collins

9       The United States presented the testimony of Dr. Sunshine Collins, who is a psychologist 10 and was qualified as an expert in psychology and competency. Docket No. 99 at 4-8. Dr. Collins 11 testified that she specializes in forensic evaluations in her private practice she has maintained in 12 Las Vegas for the past three years. Id. at 4, 6. Dr. Collins further testified that she has received 13 specialized training in conducting competency evaluations and is certified as a competency 14 evaluator in the Eighth Judicial District of Clark County, the Henderson Municipal Court, and the 15 City of Las Vegas courts. Id. at 5. Dr. Collins testified that, throughout the course of her private 16 practice, she has completed approximately five to eight competency evaluations per week. Id. at 17 6.

18       In conducting a competency evaluation, Dr. Collins testified, she seeks to determine if the 19 individual she is evaluating meets the three prongs of the Dusky standard, i.e., an ability to 20 understand the charges and the scope and nature of the possible penalty; understanding court 21 procedures, individuals involved in court, and the adversarial nature of the court process; and the 22 ability to assist counsel in preparation of a defense. Id. at 8. Dr. Collins also considers, using the 23

1 Diagnostic Statistical Manual (“DSM”) whether the individual she is evaluating has a mental 2 disease or defect. Id.

3 In the instant case, Dr. Collins had access to the discovery documents, Defendant’s mental 4 health records for his outpatient treatment, his compensation and pension records, and “numerous 5 other medical documents...” Id. at 9. Additionally, Dr. Collins conducted an in-person evaluation 6 of Defendant and interviewed his son. Id. at 9-10. Dr. Collins testified that Defendant compiled 7 his medical records and provided them to her on a USB drive. Id. at 10. When Dr. Collins opened 8 the files on the drive, she found them to be labeled and well-organized and she found that he had 9 highlighted and notated individual files. Id. Dr. Collins further found that the records Defendant 10 provided her were relevant to the issue of competency. Id. Dr. Collins found that Defendant is a 11 good historian with a good memory. Id. at 14. Dr. Collins found that Defendant has only one 12 current mental health diagnosis – major depressive disorder – which is well-managed and does not 13 impact his competency to stand trial. Id. at 25. Dr. Collins does not think that Defendant suffers 14 from any phobias. Id. at 27. She testified, however, that even if Defendant did suffer from a fear 15 of prosecution, it would be unlikely to impact his competency to stand trial, since the phobia is 16 limited to the object of the phobia. Id. Dr. Collins found that, though Defendant feels that the 17 charges against him are unfair, he did not become so emotional that he was unable to have a 18 coherent conversation with her. Id. at 22. Additionally, Dr. Collins found that Defendant’s 19 emotional response to the case against him does not fall outside the range of emotions shown by 20 an average criminal defendant. Id.

21 After considering everything provided to her, including her hour and one-half in-person 22 evaluation of Defendant, Dr. Collins concluded that Defendant is competent to stand trial under 23 each prong of the Dusky standard. Id. at 25-26. In making her determination, Dr. Collins

1 considered that Defendant was able to identify, gather, and organize a large amount of relevant 2 medical records, which he provided to her on a well-organized USB drive. Id. at 10. Dr. Collins 3 considered that Defendant understands the role of his defense attorney and, when asked how he 4 might assist his attorney, Defendant stated that he “has been able to obtain numerous records to 5 share with his attorney, as well as to develop ideas about other records that could be relevant...” 6 Id. at 18, 19. Defendant even shared a potential defense strategy that he had thought of with Dr.
7 Collins which, she testified, demonstrated that he “was able to put together some possible defense 8 data to use with his attorney in planning his strategies.” Id. at 21.

9 Prior to writing her report regarding Defendant’s competency to stand trial, Dr. Collins 10 reviewed the original report written by Defendant’s expert, Dr. Roitman. Id. at 12. After writing 11 her report, Dr. Collins reviewed Dr. Roitman’s second report, which did not change any of her 12 conclusions. Id.

13       B. Dr. Norman Roitman

14       Dr. Norman Roitman is a board-certified psychiatrist who has been practicing forensic 15 psychiatry since 1991. Id. at 49-51. Dr. Roitman has conducted several hundred competency 16 evaluations and issued reports regarding competency. Id. at 56. Dr. Roitman testified in the 17 instant case as an expert in forensic psychiatry on the issue of competency. Id. at 56.

18       The majority of Dr. Roitman’s experience conducting competency evaluations has 19 involved determining the competency of juveniles. Id. at 86. Dr. Roitman testified that the human 20 brain, as well as the emotional and developmental state of a juvenile, is “markedly different” from 21 that of an adult. Id. at 86. Dr. Roitman agreed with Dr. Collins that Defendant understands the 22 nature of the charges and the proceedings against him. Id. at 91. Dr. Roitman testified that 23 Defendant is “an intelligent man and has facts, knows the roles of court officers, court procedures,

1 and was able to answer in both evaluations with no problems those questions having to do with 2 definitions and procedures.” Id. at 50.

3 Dr. Roitman conducted two separate competency evaluations of Defendant in the instant 4 case. Id. at 56-57. He issued a report on March 5, 2018, and a second report on January 1, 2020.
5 Id. at 57. In conducting his evaluation, Dr. Roitman asked Defendant to fill out a standard 6 questionnaire, then he conducted an in-person interview of Defendant. Id. at 59. Dr. Roitman also 7 reviewed Defendant’s medical records that contained “psychotherapies, medications, medical 8 visits, and visits with his psychiatrist.” Id. at 70. Dr. Roitman noted Defendant’s high level of 9 opioid use in 2018 which, he testified, can “suppress the ability to think, calculate, and also opioids 10 affect the emotional areas of the brain...” Id. at 62-63. Dr. Roitman considered that Defendant 11 has a “profound array” of medical problems and a “wide array” of chemical influence on his mental 12 functioning, Defendant’s ability to think and reason and answer the basic questions of competency, 13 and the ability to assist counsel and process alternative please. Id. at 63-64. Dr. Roitman testified 14 that the form Defendant filled out “was the best I’ve ever seen.” Id. at 65. When Dr. Roitman 15 approached the issue of preparing his defense with his attorney, Defendant “seemed to fall apart 16 and he would repeatedly say, why me, why are they doing this to me.” Id. at 66. Dr. Roitman 17 testified that he was unable to bring Defendant back to task. Id. at 69. After completing this 18 evaluation in 2018, Dr. Roitman opined that, “[t]o a reasonable degree of medical certainty, based 19 on the review of documents and the psychiatric examination, I find Mr. Parkin lacks the capacity 20 to help prepare his defense.” Docket No. 61 at 12.

21 Dr. Roitman concluded that Defendant’s “emotions interfered with his ability to think and 22 reason on questions that had to do with facing trial, preparing for defense, facing accusers, having 23 to defend himself under these types of pressure...” Docket No. 99 at 64. Dr. Roitman further

1 testified that he found in 2018 that, when Defendant is “facing a situation that triggers his emotion, 2 his cognitive capacity is flooded by his emotional reactions, a panic attack.” Id. at 71. Despite 3 this testimony, however, Dr. Roitman’s written evaluation specifically states that Defendant was 4 “not agitated, belligerent, hostile[,] or threatening” and that he “did not clutter or disarticulate.”
 5 Docket No. 61 at 7. Further, Dr. Roitman’s report states that, although Defendant had reported 6 recent panic attacks, “he did not exhibit panic behaviors.” Id. at 8. On topics relevant to his 7 defense, Dr. Roitman wrote, Defendant “was pensive, defensive[,] and seemed detached into a 8 reverie of unjustified attacks.” Id. In court, Dr. Roitman testified that, during this evaluation, he 9 was unable to bring Defendant back to task once his emotions were triggered. Docket No. 99 at 10 69. In his report, however, Dr. Roitman wrote that, “[a]fter a time expressing his feelings and 11 thoughts about his victimization, Mr. Parkin was able to be refocused and brought back to task.
 12 He underwent the regressive transformation several times in matter pertinent to defense planning.”
 13 Docket No. 61 at 9.

14 Dr. Roitman conducted a second examination of Defendant in January 2020. Docket No.
 15 99 at 72. After evaluating Defendant, he diagnosed him with a specific phobia with panic. Id. Dr.
 16 Roitman found that Defendant suffers from a few of prosecution that “triggers a panic attack that 17 overwhelms his ability to think and reason.” Id. at 72-73; Docket No. 94. Dr. Roitman found that 18 this diagnosis is specifically tied to Defendant’s inability to assist properly with his defense.
 19 Docket No. 99 at 72-73.<sup>1</sup> He “approached the second interview with more vigor because there 20 was the presence of a[n] expert report and the arguments needed to be made.” Id. at 113. Dr.
 21 Roitman found that Defendant is fully able to remember relevant facts, gather relevant documents, 22

23 <sup>1</sup> Dr. Roitman also discussed PTSD; however, he did not use that diagnosis as a basis for his finding of incompetency. The Court, therefore, need not address it.

1 communicate with his attorney, and that he has a good relationship with his attorney. Id. at 94.
2 Defendant also discussed a potential legal strategy with Dr. Roitman. Id. at 92.

3 On cross-examination, Dr. Roitman was unable to articulate the exact nature of 4 Defendant's phobia, as it does not appear to apply to the courtroom, to any court hearing, to 5 discussing the case or potential defenses. Id. at 97, 106. Dr. Roitman could not explain what a 6 treatment for fear of prosecution should be. Id. at 109. Dr. Roitman has never before diagnosed 7 anyone with fear of prosecution. Id. at 105.

8 Dr. Roitman disagreed with Dr. Collins' report, as he thought she used more of a cognitive 9 approach. Id. at 76. Dr. Roitman thought Dr. Collins "tended to equate [Defendant] with other 10 defendants who don't have his medical history and aren't under his circumstances." Id. at 76. Dr.
11 Roitman thought that Dr. Collins missed data because she did not speak to Defendant's attorney 12 about his observations. Id. at 77-78. He also thought that her report did not appear "to be organized 13 in accordance with the question that she was asked to answer..." Id. at 78.

14 Dr. Roitman proposed a plan to restore Defendant to competency that included techniques 15 such as systematic desensitization, cognitive behavioral therapy, mindfulness training, and clinical 16 hypnotherapy. Docket No. 94 at 26-27. Dr. Roitman did not believe that further medication would 17 be helpful, but thought that Defendant would benefit from treatment as he suggested in 18 combination with his present psychiatric treatment. Docket No. 99 at 83-84, 116-117.

19 C. Findings

20 Both doctors found that Defendant is intelligent and that he understands the charges against 21 him as well as the court proceedings and the necessary players. The only question before the 22 Court, then, is whether Defendant can assist his counsel. The record is clear that Defendant could 23 gather all relevant medical records and organize them in an appropriate fashion, even highlighting

1 some important portions. In speaking with both doctors, Defendant was able to articulate a 2 cognizable legal defense. While Defendant feels that the charges against him are unfair and is 3 emotional about the case, the Court finds that many criminal defendants feel the same way.

4 The Court finds that some of Dr. Roitman's testimony contradicts his written findings. As 5 one example, he testified that, during one of his examinations, he was unable to bring Defendant
6 back to task once his emotions were triggered. This testimony, however, contradicts Dr. Roitman's 7 report, which states that he was able to refocus Defendant and bring him back to task after allowing 8 him to express his feelings. Dr. Roitman's testimony regarding his second evaluation of Defendant 9 – that he “approached the second interview with more vigor because there was the presence of a[n] 10 expert report and the arguments needed to be made” – troubles the Court as it does not appear that 11 he approached the interview in an unbiased manner. The Court finds that Dr. Collins' report and 12 testimony are simply more objective than that given by Dr. Roitman. The Court therefore places 13 more weight on Dr. Collins' findings than on those made by Dr. Roitman.

14 Finally, the Court watched Defendant throughout the competency hearing. The Court 15 noted that he remained calm and collected during the hearing. The Court also observed him 16 whispering back and forth with his attorney and, on occasion, writing notes to one of his attorneys 17 as he listened to the testimony. The Court also observed that attorney then speak to Defendant's 18 other attorney after reading Defendant's note. Defendant appeared more than capable of assisting 19 his attorney throughout the competency hearing.

20 The Court's observations of Defendant, combined with the credible report and testimony 21 of Dr. Collins, convince the Court that Defendant is able to assist his attorney with his defense.
22 Therefore, the Court finds that Defendant meets all prongs of the Dusky test.

III. CONCLUSION

Accordingly, IT IS HEREBY RECOMMENDED that Defendant Charles Parkin be required to stand trial based on the undersigned's findings that he is competent to do so.

DATED: April 3, 2020.
